The Lupine is native to southern Europe, in recent years, horticulture has cultivated colorful new varieties such as pink, purple and white. Every year from the end of February to March, yellowish Lupines are in full bloom among the tea trees, becoming little dots of stars among the tea gardens. Lupine provides the best nutrients for the land after it withers, just like the Hakka mother's dedication and inheritance to the family, and is regarded as the "Hakka mother flower." There are many varied species of sunflowers. There are single petals, double petals or single flowers and multi- flowers when it comes to flower types. Although the color of the flowers are mainly yellow and orange. There are also deep red petals with golden edges, copper flower and two-tone golden yellow, even white and other special variants; because sunflowers have noticeable phototropism properties, it seems to be facing the sun, that is why it is called the sunflower. After the flower withers, the central disc is produces seeds. Most of the land in Peru is quite dry and is exposed to sunlight for most of the year, so they chose the sunflower which resembles the sun to be their national flowers.

January cherry February apricot, in this gorgeous flowery world, there is a tea like aroma that fills the mountain, there are also seas of pink flowers in the mountains, apricot flowers are an ancient flower and tree, in addition to flowers can also bear fruit, it holds an important position both in fruit production and urban beautification. In Taiwan, folk architecture and temple buildings often use apricot flowers as works of art. For example, the storefront archway facade of Daxi Old Street is often decorated with carving of vases with peony and apricot flowers. The peony represents wealth, and the apricot flower represents academic success, inserted in a vase to represent "wealth and academic success." The apricot flower in full bloom is rich in color, rich in rouge, and like the spring breeze, suitable for planting and displaying, the "Apricot Flower Forest" of MaoKong has from February to March every year the apricot flower blooming season. The Tung tree is planted throughout Taiwan. Every year in the early summer, you can enjoy the flowers of the Tung tree everywhere. At the turn of spring and summer, blooming the most are the Tung tree flowers in Miaoli, like flakes of snow, covering the mountain. Tung trees have three flowering periods a year, the well-known March - May, because the flowering period does not exceed four weeks, so it can easily fall due to wind and rain, it will bloom again from August-September and December, but it does not fall easily due to its smaller number, thus the flowering period is longer. In the early years, many Hakkas used the Tung tree as an economical crop, so the relationship between the Tung tree and the Hakka people runs very deep. Therefore, the Tung tree flower, which is known as the "May Snow", has become the most beautiful cultural symbol of the Hakka, with extravagant Tung tree flower festivals held annually.
